Guide to part-time study
Undergraduate and postgraduate opportunities

ulster.ac.uk
Whatever your career ambitions or personal motivations, at Ulster University we can offer you a learning experience that works with your life. Our suite of part-time programmes covers a broad range of subject areas and is designed with convenience and flexibility in mind. Join our 8,000-strong community of part-time students who are already taking their learning to the next level at Ulster.
Why study part-time?

Put simply, part-time study gives you greater control over your learning journey. You can balance work and other commitments and study at a pace that suits you. This means you can earn while you learn and build up valuable work experience to complement your qualification and set you apart in a competitive labour market.

“I chose to study at Ulster because it offers an affordable and flexible part-time module schedule. In this way, I am able to work toward my educational goal, remain employed and pay my own tuition fee.”

Carmen Estrada, LLB Law
Learn your way, right on your doorstep

We are a leading provider of part-time learning opportunities, with courses delivered across four campuses: Belfast, Coleraine, Jordanstown and Magee. Depending on the programme, you can be taught on campus, entirely online, or a combination of both, often called ‘blended’ learning.

There is also the opportunity to study at a variety of levels, from short courses, undergraduate degrees, postgraduate certificates and diplomas, to a complete master’s, giving you greater flexibility and choice over your student experience.

“It is challenging completing an MSc, but I really enjoyed the content of the course and the blended learning aspect allowed me to successfully combine work, family and study commitments.”

Stephanie Ingram, MSc Sport and Exercise Nutrition
More affordable than you think

Undergraduate
Our typical fee for a part-time undergraduate degree is just £4,995* in total. If you study your degree over six years, your fees could be as little as £83.25* per month, spread over ten monthly payments each year of your course. Discounts for up-front payment are also available.

Postgraduate
Most master’s degrees are £4,995* in total, with flexible payment over ten months, each year of your course. Discounts are also available, including a ten per cent reduction for Ulster University alumni. Most postgraduate diplomas and postgraduate certificates are £3,330* and £1,665* respectively. Find out more at ulster.ac.uk/learnyourway

Short courses
For details of short courses, visit ulster.ac.uk/ulster-life/go-to-ulster/short-courses

*Correct at time of print. Exclusions apply. Terms and conditions apply.
Get in touch

With part-time study, you could complete an undergraduate degree in as little as four and a half years or a master’s in two to three years. What’s more, you may not need formal qualifications to apply and could receive recognition for learning gained through relevant work experience. Talk to us about your options.

Get in touch on study@ulster.ac.uk or +44 (0)28 9036 8821.

Browse the full range of exciting part-time courses at ulster.ac.uk/courses/course-finder